“ Heaven is a happier and louder place today. I can only imagine Cozy sitting at the beautiful, magnificent, gold organ God has for her. The sweet sound of "Amazing Grace" loudly echoes through heaven, as her fingers fly over the keys. Cozy, your love and music will be missed by all. Love and prayers are with your sweet family. Later, my friend.

Cozy got her wings and has joined the angels in heaven watching over all her family and friends - she had been doing just that for years. Most of the kids that grew up around here knew that they could count on her for help for whatever the need - if they could not find their own Mom - they knew they could depend on their second Mom Cozy.

Cozy & I were sitting outside the courthouse and she spoke to someone walking up. I asked her who it was and she didn't know. After about the third person and the same response from her, I asked her if she was told not to speak to strangers. I finally realized there were no strangers to Cozy. She viewed everyone as a friend or a potential friend. I will miss this dear friend. Our thoughts and prayers are with all the family and friends who loved her.

“ There's an old saying, "never put a question mark, where God has placed a period." God's will may not be our preference, but it's what's meant to be, no matter the heartache it causes. She worked hard, played harder and loved the hardest. She didn't have friends, she had family and loved everyone with her whole heart. Just like you, she welcomed me under the trees, into her home and forever into her family. She was good people, and wanted you to be as well. If you weren't living right, she'd kick your ass and let you know it. She never said goodbye, only see you later. So farewell, Cora Sue. I love you and I'll see you later.

I know she touched many lives, as she did my daughter's and mine.
