“ Our thoughts and prayers are with each of you. Having been there to witness her struggles hopefully you realize that death is not always the enemy that we see him as being. There is no doubt that she was a fighter and really did not want to leave the happiness she had experienced in the past few years.

May you each be aware of being in the loving and protective arms of the Good Shepherd as you encounter the days and weeks in the day ahead.

“ My heart breaks to read of Retas passing. Her daughter Misty and my son Ryan fell in love when they were teenagers. our families became friends because of that. Reta never said a bad word about anyone, and she loved her children and parents and finally her grandbabies. I never met her husband, but im sure he is a good man, because she was a good woman. i wish i had known she was sick, i would have been a better friend. I just never got out much over the past year or so. I will keep her family in my prayers. With much love....Maggie Coughlan.
