

Samantha Denise Damron Aultman

April 1, 1986 - May 3, 2015

Samantha Denise Damron Aultman was born April 1, 1986 in San Angelo, Texas. The third daughter of Danny and Deborah Damron, she was the apple of her daddy's eye. Danny recalls putting Sam on his belly as an infant, and rocking side to side to comfort her. Both would fall asleep. Born with Strawberry Blonde hair and big blue eyes, she attracted attention as a baby and later as a beautiful young woman. Her outgoing personality and enthusiastic approach to life, she carried with her throughout life. She touched in some small way every person she came in contact with. Samantha's smile was contagious. Her mother Debbie remarked, how the room would light up upon Sam's entrance.

The special compassion she showed for everyone, family, friends, even small animals. As a child, Sam would go outside and find baby possums in the trash cans and rescue them, trying to make sure they had food and were okay to return home ! Her sisters, Amy and Angela, recalled many fond memories with their baby sister. When asked to describe Sam, they said she was strong willed, funny, she always knew when something was wrong and could be stubborn at times. But most of all, she would try to raise someone's spirit when they were down.

Those qualities are what made her a good mother. She loved Chloe', William and Emily immensely. With each birth she would remark how they had saved her life and gave her purpose. Samantha had a lot of trials to overcome here on earth. In her brief existence here, she stumbled as we all do, but would pick herself up, use her strength and loving nature to get back to what she knew was the right path. God was a constant beacon in her life. She had recently gotten her life back in order, and beginning relationships anew with her children was her first priority. Even though that time was cut short, we know she will still do that from above, watching over them throughout their lives. It is important to know Sam was at the happiest chapter in her life. Brief as it was, she made a deep lasting impression on all of us. We will love you forever, and keep you in our hearts always, Samantha. Amen

Sam is preceded in death by her step mom, Rita Kay Damron; first husband, Charles Moody; grandfather, Billy Dan Damron and grandmother, Charlotte Damron.

She is survived today by her mother, Deborah Damron; father, Danny Damron; children, Klowie Moore; Emily and William Moody; sisters, Amy Esparza and Angela Damron and her brother, Daniel Stagner.

Family asks that any memorial be made to Coker Funeral Home for funeral expenses.
